The Lecherous Career of An Unprincipled Wretch.

AT LAST SEEN IN ITS TRUE LIGHT. An Injured Husband Seeks Legal

Satisfaction

FOR THE RUIN OF THE WIFE HE LOVED.

Who Had Been Lured from Her Marital Duty by a Professor Whose Stock in Trade Was Patti's Kinship.

Kansas City, Mo., April 11 .- (Special.)-Mredo Barili, a professor of music, with strection rooms in the Bayard building, o. 1214 Main street, was sued yesterday in the United States circuit court for $50,damages for alienating the affections the wife of Melville F. Horine, a weilhown citizen of Chicago. Professor Barili is a nephew of the famous songstress, Madame Patti, with whom he was supposed to be a great favor-ite, and was heir to one-fourth of her une, until she dropped him because of his duplicity and culpable conduct.

The Story of the Woman's Fall.

Last November, in Atlanta, Ga., he de serted his family, consisting of a devoted wife and three children, and shortly afterwards turned up in Kansas City as an instructor of four young girls in the art of

The injured husband in this case, Dr Melville F. Horine, resided in Chicago, and his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Castleng an invalid in Atlanta, Ga., desired her ter, Dora, the doctor's wife, to be with her and the doctor consented that she, together with her children, should go to the home of her mother in Atlanta and re-

The Professor Comes In.

His wife found leisure to continue her studies in music, and, to aid her husband in this, she sought the instruction of Proin this, she sought the instruction of Pro-fessor Alfredo Barili. This was the inno-cent commencement of what has almost completed the destruction of two happy families. Barili no source of two happy of the doctor's youthful wife, than he set out to accomplish her ruin. He utilized the fact that he was a nephew of Madame Patti Nicolini, together with flattery, and presented to the young wife a fairy story of the money he was to receive from Patti, European travel, and other such suggestions that would naturally interest a lady full of life and ambition. His story, in time, had its desired effect, and Mrs. Horine fell from grace. Barili played the lover set to perfection will be played the lover act to perfection until he had the woman in his power, and then the brute nature asserted itself. In one of his letters, written about a year ago, he thus pours forth his amorous fellings:
Oh, I love you! I love you! A thousand times I love you! Clasped in those lovely arms of yours, with my head on your deur, sweet breast, life is worth living; and I say, clasp me tight, tighter still, dearest.

The Wife's Terrible Effort. That he is an expert in his villainous nethods, and that the wife clung with courage and the grip of death to her duty, to her husband, to her children and to her good name, is shown by the following let-

You have acted nobly toward your children. It shall teach me my duty toward mine. For their sake I shall renounce everything save duty. You have not considered that you save duty. You have not considered that you owe me anything. This is the bitterness of death to me. For that woman you can doom me to a life which is hell. From the beginning my love for you has been a constant acrifice; yours a constant demand. Small-natured and selfish, as other men, for you I have despised the crown of womanhood, the honorable, chivairic and unselfish devotion of a true and loyal husband. Can I now insult him with a perjured heart and a dishonored body? Better death a thousand times. orde body? Better death a thousand times.
When I met you I was a cheerful, happy

For six months life has been a diverge. For six months life has been a daily torture to nie. I can stand it no longer. You are not prudent, and my name would soon be unsafe with you. You compromised me tonight by giving me that letter, promised me tonight by giving me that letter, whose cruelty has benumbed my heart. With hope I could have risked anything for your seke. With despair I must risk nothing. I cannot see you again. It would be useless agony. When I look into your eyes I am not strong. By a life of devotion and service I will atone to my sweet children. I shall not, like a selfish child, court happiness. I do not deserve it. Duty shall be my god and the torture and sperifice of my body shall do penance for the terrors of my heart and soul. Return my letters. Respect what is worthy in me, and be silent as to the rest. Would to God I had never met you. I live in hell henceforth. Let this farewel be fir at Barili was deaf to her pleadings and Her repentance and remorse he rediculed, and to keep hold upon her and prevent her from listening to the promptings of her true wife and mother heart, he went to Europe and to the castle of Mme. Pat-ti, and from there portrayed to her in let-ters the riches he was soon to have as the legatee of Patti, the great favor in which he was held by Patti, and the beauties of European life.

That these things kept the wayward, broken-hearted, repentant wife in his power, is shown by her letter to her husband. Referring to the European travels, etc., in which she says, she "cannot give up this beautiful hope to again return to his quiet home."

The Proceedings for Divorce.

Necessarily, Barili's own family was broken up, and in time is found a divorce suit pending, Barili vs. Barili, in Decatur, in which, it is said, Barili pays all the expenses, and his wife and the children are to have their homestead in Atlanta. Of his own wife and this suit lanta. Of his own wife and this sun, in DeKalb county, and that it will be just one year from February that I can be free. Will this be satisfactory to you? You understand that unless I am sure of getting you, I would drop the divorce matter altogether. Mrs. Barill seems to hate the idea of swearing that I have been cruel to her, for she must do this, and even swear that her life was in danger, in order to obtain a divorce. On the plea of desertion, it requires three years to get a divorce in Georgia. I have written her to go ahead; I do not care what she swears, just so I am free. Mrs. Barill must not be selfish any more, and must find consolation in her children. Once with you, I shall be a different man. Mrs. Barill writes me that she would have to sue me for cruelty, and she would have to sue me for cruelty, and even have to say that her life had been in even have to say that her life had been in danger, as it would require three long years to procure a divorce on the plen of desertion. I have written to her to go ahead, as I would not wait three years. But for the love I have for you I would not have signed this paper. I repeat what I have before said to you, that but for the hope of living with you at no distant period, I would not have sought to be free.

The Part Patti Played. While in Chicago, a few months ago, Madame Patti learned of the intrigue, and summoned Barili before her. The attorney for Dr. Horine sought out the diva at her notel, the Auditorium, and laid bare the facts in the case.

"Well, what do you want me to do?"
asked Madame Patti. "Compel Barili to cease his attention to Mrs. Horine, or disinherit him," was the Patti agreed to this, and a telegram was sent to Barili, ordering him to go to Chicago at once. He obeyed, and was confronted by Patti, who told him plainly that he must give up the woman, under the penalty of disinheritance. Barili was a coward, but a sly, scheming one. He be-came an abject creature in the presence of the great diva. Patti did not mince matthe great divis. Fatt did that he give ters. She demanded of Barili that he give up the doctor's wife forever, or be forever discarded by her. He promised Patti, in the most abject manner, that he would do so, and, while he was assuring her and his attorney here, William Frederickson, that he was keeping all his promises to her, he was still clinging to the doctor's wife.

Mrs. Horino Joins Barili. pursuance to these telegrams, Barili and the doctor's wife met in St. Louis on March 3d, in the evening, and Barili registered at the St. James hotel, in his own writing, in these words: "J. Pittman, New York. Mrs. M. Oliver, New York."

For some reason they left that house, and went to the Southern hotel, where he asked for connecting rooms, and was ordered out of the hotel. They then registered at the Hurst hotel as "J. Pittman and Mrs. J. M. Oliver," and took rooms 200 and 220. Then locking their rooms, they walked to the Hotel Austria, and register ed this way, "J. Parkhurst and wife, Philadelphia," where they occupied room 511-2 all night. The doctor appearing on the scene the next morning in St. Louis, Barili fled in the most cowardly manner from the hotel and the city, and has since held forth in Kansas City, as the instruct-or of young ladies in the higher accomplish-

Their Wedding Trip. The marriage of Dr. Horine and Miss Dora Castleberry was quite a social sen-sation in Atlanta. After their marriage the took the morning Western and Atlantic train for Chicago. On the same train was the celebrated Deacon Richard Smith, of Clincinnati, who took quite a liking to the bride. During the few moments stop of the train at Big Shanty, the deacon, on learning the destination of the couple, addressed the bride:

"A lovelier woman I never saw." THE NEWS IN ATLANTA.

It Will Not Create Any Great Surprise

This interesting story that comes over the wires is not altogether news to the people of Atlanta and this section of the south, who have grown familiar with the affair already by hearing it talked over so often.

It has for some time been pretty generally believed here that the chief cause, or one of the chief causes, of Professor Barili's sudden departure from Atlanta was due to his becoming enamored of this young and attractive married lady.

The letters published by his prosecutor, over Barili's own signature, clearly show that this general belief was well founded. But, whether it be news or not, it is a highly interesting story, and will be read widely.

The Departure of Barilli from Atlanta.

The Departure of Barilli from Atlanta.

Professor Barili's departure from Atlanta early one morning last fall is recalled by a young merchant, who relates an interesting incident connected therewith.

This merchant accompanied a young lady friend to the depot, and in the waiting room he noticed Professor Barili and a lady whom he supposed was the musician's wife. In a few minutes, however, the professor's companion arose, and then the merchant recognized Mrs. Horine. He was a little surprised, but was not near so much so as he was the next minute. For, turning to bid the lady adieu, the professor gave her a most affectionately returned. The kisses did not stop at one apiece, but were kept up until the professor had to break away to catch his train, which was moving. Tears came into Mrs. Horine's eyes. She wiped them away with a dainty kerchief and threw kisses after the train at the same time.

eyes. She wiped them away with a dainty kerchief and threw kisses after the train at the same time.

The merchant was going up to Greenville, and he paid no attention to Barili until the train was nearing Greenville. Then he said to his young lady friend:

"There is Professor Barili, the eminent musician. If you wish to have a pleasant gentleman to chat with on the rest of your trip, I will introduce you."

"No sir," the lady replied, emphatically, "I do not want to know any married man who is accompanied to a train by a woman who is not his wife, and who kisses that woman as the professor did his friend. I prefer to travel alone."

At Greenville, the merchant bade his friend a pleasant journey, nodded adieu to Barili, and stepped off. The train sped on, carrying the musician on to Philadelphia. That was Barili's departure from Atlanta, his home and family.

The incident was dismissed by the merchant from his mind, until the story of the professor's prolonged absence was published a week or two later.

She Couldn't Be Found.

Up to a few weeks ago Mrs. Horine lived with her children and an invalid mother at West End. The home is a pretty one, with circles traced on the lawn by overgreens and pretty flowers, all shaded by trees just budding into greenness. It is just two doors from Park street, on a side street, and so near the Park Street Methodist church that the church music can easily be heard.

A ring on the door bell of this home last night brought a strange gentleman to the door. She Couldn't Be Found.

"I am a stranger in the city and don't know where Mrs. Horine lives. She moved out of this house nearly a month ago."
Two doors farther down lives Mrs. Castleberry, a relative of Mrs. Horine.
She was greatly surprised when told of the suit.

"It cannot be true," she declared; "It is a lot of newspaper rubbish. Mrs. Horine left here nearly two weeks ago with Dr. Horine for Chicago, and she is there now, with him. He went some time ago and returned about ten days ago for Mrs. Horine and the children. Mrs. Horine could not go at first on account of her mother, who was an invalid."

"Was there ever any separation between Dr. and Mrs. Horine?"

"None. Yes, Mr. Barili was a great friend of the family. But Mrs. Barili will tell you this is untrue. Fifty thousand dollars! Neither has fifty thousand cents!"

Mrs. Barili Here.

Mrs. Barili Here.

Mrs. Barili is in Atlanta, but an effort to see Mrs. Barill is in Atlanta, but an effort to see her last night was unavailing.

It is known, however that Mrs. Barili has begun suit for divorce and alimony from her husband, the paper having been quietly filed at Decatur some time ago. This was done to avoid the notoriety of a suit in Fulton county. The ground upon which the divorce is asked for is desertion, and it has been known all the time that Barili would make no defense.

THE DRUMMER IN COURT

But the Decision is Against Him and He
Washington, April 11.—The United States supreme court today gave a decision in favor of the county in the case of Charles L. Ficklen against the taxing district of Shelby county, Tennessee, brought here on appeal by Ficklen from the decision of the state court. Ficklen had an office in Tennessee at which he took orders for goods. His business was entirely with firms outside the state and differed from that of ordinary commercial travelers, principally in that he did not travel about soliciting orders, but had an office where he exhibited samples. A law was passed imposing a tax of $50 on dealers in merchandise and also a tax on their capital. Where there was no capital invested, as was the case with Ficklen, it was provided that 2 1.2 per cent tax should be paid on all commissions received. Ficklen paid the license fee and reported his sales during the year 1887 and refused to pay the commission tax on the ground that the business done was entirely for a firm outside of the state and that the account was void as a regulation of interstate commerce. When he applied for license in 1888, it was refused because of the non-payment of the commission tax and Ficklen sought by injunction proceedings to compel its issuance. In an opinion by Chief Justice Fuller the supreme court of Tennessee had properly decided against Ficklen. The court, in its opinion, said that no doubt can be entertained of the right of the state legislature to tax traders, professions and becupations and where a resident citizen engaged in a general business subject to a particular tax. The fact that he may be engaged wholly or partially in negotiating sales between a resident and non-resident merchant, of goods situated in another state, does not necessarially involve taxation of interstate commerce, but on the broker himself for carrying on a general business. The Tennessee supreme court, it was held, had properly decided that the fact that from resorting to the courts. What position t

GOSCHEN WAS HAPPY

When He Submitted the Budget to the House of Commons.

London, April 11.—Mr. Goschen, chancellor of the exchequer, presented the budget in the house of commons today. There was a full attendance of members, and the scene was very animated. Mr. Goschen said that, as a traveler in ascending a hill frequently funcied that he had reached the highest point, only to find it was not the top, so it has, the past three weeks, been his experience with the financial prosperity of the country. Estimates had been framed on the theory that the top had cial prosperity of the country. Estimates had been framed on the theory that the top had been attained, yet the curve led onward and upward. Good fortune again permitted him to submit a budget, showing a surplus of £1,067,000. This was largely due to the expenditure for the departments, for it was not, to any extent, due to any expansion of revenue. There had been a time when he had suffered great anxiety. During January and February the prospect was not bright, but during March it was better, and this enabled him to give a satisfactory result. In the last budget the estimate of expenditures was £99,264,000. Actual expenditures was £99,264,000, leaving a surplus of £336,000. This was a remarkably small difference between the estimate and actual expenditures. The total estimates of expenditures during the last three years was £264,000,000. The total difference in expenditure was only £137,000.

This statement was received with cheers. Analyzing the revenue, Mr. Goschen said that the customs produced £19,736,000, being £36,000 above the sum calculated upon. It was not alcohol that caused the increase this year, but tobacco. Revenue tax from tea was exceedingly satisfactory, yieding £34,000 over the estimates. Tobacco produced £9,953,000, being £418,000 above the previous year. All this, Mr. Goschen declared, proved that wages had not fallen, and that there was still widely diffused prosperity among the workingmen. peen framed on the theory that the not fallen, and that there was still whelly diffused prosperity among the workingmen. The excise revenue showed £543,000 over the estimate. The increase in the consumption of home spirits was greater in England than in Ireland or Scotland, being 61-2 per cent in England against 13-5 per cent in Scotland and 6 per cent in Ireland. More spirits were consumed than beer.

THEY WILL WORK FOR HILL Hill and Victory a Better Slogan Than

Cleveland and Defeat. Savannah, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The fourth district democratic club was organized tonight with a large membership. It will take part in local elections, and will especially fight the third party movement. Resolutions endorsing Hill as the best candidate for the democratic party were enthusiastically adopted. One of the events of the evening was the open declaration, in a speech by Gazaway Hartridge, that he was for Hill. He said he preferred Hill and victory to Cleveland and defeat. He and Major Kyals and other speakers believed that if Cleveland is nominated Georgia will be lost to the third party.

Executive Secrets Leaking Out from the Senate-Mr. Sherman Grows

Washington, April 11.—(Special.)—The Georgia congressmen are delighted with the news that comes from Georgia of the way the third party leaders are being put to flight.

Already the third party leaders are on the defensive, to all appearances, from this end of the line, and that is looked upon here to mean a sure defeat in every section of the state. Judge Turner has gone home to pour hot shot into them down in the second. With him, Moses and Livingston all fighting for the democracy, no one here fears any victories on the part of the third party. Indeed, while there was a scare for a time, it is rapidly evaporating and the prediction is being made that Georgia's delegation will be solidly democratic in the next house. A well-known politician from the tenth, here last night, says the democrats of that district have practically decided to nominate Major J. C. C. Black, of Augusta, and that the nomination will be tendered him with such unanimity that he cannot decline. He believes that Major Black will sweep the district, and will even carry McDuffle county by a large majority. "While the tenth, for several months has been considered the hot-bed for the third party," said he, "It is no longer so. The people are rapidly reaching an under-standing of the situation, and are going to stand firmly with the democrats. Whoever the democrats nominate, and I believe the man will be Black, will be elected."

They Discharged a Clerk.

The senate in executive session this afternoon passed a resolution removing Mr. James Young, the executive clerk, from his office. Senator Sherman made the fight against him, holding that Mr. Toung had given to the newspapers the Beliring sea correspondence. As a matter of fact, the correspondence did not come from Mr. Young, but from a senator. In order to protect themselves the senators. who are in the habit of giving out executive session news to make themselves popular with the correspondents, and have themselves favored, discharged Mr. Young. They believe their action will cause the country to believe they keep secrets, but those who know anything about executive sessions know that the news always comes from the senators the most honest are the men who tell most.

Senator Hill's Return Senator Hill returned from New York today. While he has declined to discuss political matters for publication, his friends say affairs in New York are in splendid shape for him. They say there will be no mugwump May convention, and no contesting delegation from the York to the Chicago convention. Mr. Hill's friends also say that, while the friends of the claimant are doing the blowing right now, when Connecticut and New Jersey come to the front with Hill delegates there will be a very destructive collapse of a swollen boom. Indeed, the friends of the New York senator, who have talked with him today, wear very smiling faces, and are apparently happy.

The Silver Question.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, is determined to have the country understand just what the treasury officials are doing to prevent the adoption of free coinage by this government. He is impressed with the idea that the administration is attempting idea that the administration is attempting to depress the value of silver bullion by the manner of its purchase. Today he in-troduced a resolution calling upon the secretary of the treasury for information in regard to the question in every phase.

CAPSIZING OF A CRAFT By Which Nine Persons Were Drowned Story of the Survivors.

Story of the Survivors.

Boston, Mass., April 11.—Last evening an instructor and ten boys connected with the Boston farm school, at Thompson's island, capstaed in a sailboat, and the instructor and eight of the boys drowned. The victims were:

A. F. Nordberg. Instructor; Frank Hitchcock, Homer Thatcher, George Eills, Thomas Phillips, William Curran, Charles Graves, Harry E. Loud and Adelbert H. Packard. The rescued boys were: Ove W. Clements and Charles A. Limb. The instructor had been to the city during the day to attend church, and the ten boys, constituting a regular crew of the school, left the island at 6:30 o'clock to sail to City point to convey the instructor to the island. The trip was considered perfectly safe under ordinary circumstances, having been made for years, even during winter months, without accident. As a precaution, however, in view of the breeze, the crew took a single-sail boat instead of a double-sail craft, in which the trip was often made. The trip to the point was made and soon after 7 o'clock p. m. the boat started on the return trip.

The trip to the point was made and soon after 7 o'clock p. m. the boat started on the return trip.

At a point supposed to be between Spectacle island and Thompson's island the boat was struck by a squall and immediately capsized. The eleven occupants were thrown into the ice-cold water, but being accustomed to strict discipline and the exercise of heroism in school, they all secured positions where they could cling to the overturned craft, and then began a long wait for rescape, which to most of them was never to come.

According to the testimony of the two survivors they encouraged each other by words of cheer, occasionally shouting in the hope that they might be heard by some one on shore. At one time a tug was seen in the distance and they shoulded with all their remaining strength, but could not attract attention. The night was cold and the shores and wharfs were abandoned. When the time for the boat to return to the island had passed the superintendent of the school, Charles H. Hradley, went to the beach to scan the waters toward City point to see if his boys were approaching. There was a free on a neighboring Island and he got in range of the firelight in the hope that it would assist his vision, but he saw nothing. The survivors say they saw his form patrolling the beach and felt sure rescue would come, but it did not. Finally the chill of the water and the exertion necessary to keep their heads above the surface overcame the unfortunates and one by one they were compelled to relinquish their hold.

The instructor was the first to go. Each offered prayer or a word of farewell to the other as he gave up his hold on life. Some of them endured the unequal contest for nearly four hours, and it was quite four hours, or about 11 o'clock, when the boat with the two survivors still clinging to it, but exhausted, drifted ashore. They were immediately cared for and are rapidly recovering from the effects of their exposure.

Railroad Stocks Being Offered for Exchrage Under the Olcott Plan.

The Terminal company owns $8,781,200 East Tennessee first preferred stock; $6,536,000 second preferred stock; $6,536,000 second preferred stock; $6,536,000 common stock and additional deposits with the Central Trust Company will practically mean that there can be nothing whatever in the reports about the severance of the East Tennessee from the system and the plan. The First National bank deposited today between five hundred thousand and six hundred thousand dollars Terminal six per cent bonds. This would indicate that the reports pointing to that interest as opponents of the plan of reorganization are entirely erroneous. At the office of the Central Trust Company it was said that the deposits today have been larger than on any previous day, and nearly all the clerks in the transfer department were kept busy taking in securities. There was a line of depositors nearly all day. The Central Trust Company desires to advise depositors of stock under the plan of reororganization that certificates must be assigned in blank before a notary or a bank officer, or the signatures must be guaranteed by the stock exchange. JUDGE HILLYER IN CLAYTON-He Addresses a Mass Meeting of Citizens in Jonesboro.

Jonesboro, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—Today was the date advertised for a mass meeting of the third party sympathizers of Clayton county. At 9 o'clock a. m. the courthouse contained about one hundred friends of the new movement. Quite a number of rock-ribbed democrats were also scattered among contained about one aundred friends of the new movement. Quite a number of rockribbed democrats were also scattered among the crowd viewing the proceedings.

A permanent organization was perfected by electing a chairman and secretary and an executive committee for the county. A resolution was introduced and passed endorsing the St. Louis platform and an original party song was sung by some third party enthusiasts.

At the adjournment of the third party meeting Colonel W. L. Walters, of this city, arose and announced to the crowd that at the request of a number of Clayton county citizens Judge George Hillyer, of Atlanta, had come down and was present for the ourpose of addressing the people on the issues of the day, and he asked their attention to his speech. Tudge Hillyer was received with applause, and after thanking the audlence for remaining to hear him, he proceeded to deliver a speech in defense of the principles of democracy and showing the fatal mistake being made by some by deserting the grand old party and joining a new and doubtful movement. He spoke feelingly and touchingly of his long associations and friendiliness with the people of Clayton and the granner in which they had always manifested a good will and kindness for him. He said nothing harsh or bitter, but only made a strong discussion of the issues before the people. He called their attention to the fact that with but one or two minor exceptions the principles advocated by both the democratic and people's parties were the same, and argued that a division of the democratic party in the south would accomplish no good.

MURDER IN ROME.

A Jealous Negro Puts His Wife to

Rome, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—A serious tragedy occurred early this morning on the premises of Mr. J. Aken Gammon, on Third avenue. Frank McClendon, colored, with his pocketknife, cut from ear to ear the throat of his young wife, Lou. Just five weeks ago, Frank McClendon and Lou Harris entered the blissful estate of marriage. Frank is of ebony hue, and is about twenty-five years of age. Lou is a very comely mulatto girl, about seventeen years old. Everything went blissfully enough for a few days. Lou was employed as a house girl, and lived on the premises of Mr. Gammon. A few nights ago Frank and his wife quarreled, and so great was the uproor that Mr. Gammon ordered Frank off the premises. Last night Frank went back, and, finding her absent, went to another house in the neighborhood and found her there in bed. Frank then returned to her room and remained all night. A little after daylight she came in, and they quarreled. The result was that she was stabbed in the side and her throat was cut in a semi-circle.

Murder in Mississippi. Jackson, Miss. April 11.—(Special.)—News has just reached here of a horrible murder committed in Rankin county, a few miles east of this city, on yesterday. A negro man named James Scott, heretofore regarded as a negro of good character, killed his wife with an iron poker. The negroes came very near hanging him, but were persuaded by a white man to let the law take its course, and he was lodged last night in the Brandon jall.

THE DIRECTORS MEET.

The Exposition Directors Hold a Meeting There was a meeting of the directors of the Exposition company yesterday afternoon at the office of the company.

The matter under discussion was the proposed sale of some of the property of the company.

A big part of the property of the company was represented and a great deal of talk and a great many opinions were advanced as to the best course to pursue.

Dr. H. L. Wilson, the real estate man was present and gave his views.

Nothing definite was agreed upon. It was suggested some time ago that an assessment of the stockholders would be necessary to meet the pressing demands on the company. This has not yet been decided upon.

Another meeting of the directors may be held soon.

RAILROAD NEWS.

The Seaboard Air-Line Will Start Trains Next Sunday.

HOURS TO

Passenger and Freight Rates Will Be Reduced.

THE CENTRAL'S MAJORITY STOCK.

The Georgia, Carolina and Northern will run its first passenger train into At-lanta next Sunday, unless something unexpected occurs.

This train will leave Elberton at 5 o'clock in the morning and reach Atlanta at 9 o'clock. Returning it will leave Atlanta at 3 o'clock p. m. and arrive at Elberton at 7 o'clock p. m. This is Atlanta time. The road, however, will use eastern time which is an hour later than Atlanta's standard.

On the same day the Georgia, Carolina and Northern will start a through train service between Charlotte and Atlanta.
The schedule between Atlanta and Charlill be eleven hours, the same time lotte will be eleven hours, the same time made by the Richmond and Dauville. Leaving Charlotte at 6 o'clock a, m. the train will reach Atlanta at 5 o'clock p. m. North bound the train will leave Atlanta at 8 o'clock a. m. and reach Charlotte at o'clock p. m. The distances from Atlanta are: Tc Athens 67 miles, to Elberton 101 miles, to

The distances from Atlanta are: To Athens 67 miles, to Elberton 101 miles, to Charlotte 290 miles.

Fares between Atlanta and Athens and Elberton will be considerably lower than the present rates by the longer lines. From Atlanta to Athens the run will be only two hours and forty-five minutes and from Atlanta to Elberton four hours each way. The schedule will be a convenient one for residents along the line who desire to come to Atlanta as they can leave home in the morning, get in Atlanta at 9 o'clock, spend six hours here and return in the afternoon. Superintendent Winder said yesterday that the roadbed is in good condition and after awhile better time will be made between Atlanta and Athens.

Passengers going north will buy their tickets and eheck their baggage at the ticket office on Edgewood avenue, opposite the Equitable building. Attractive waiting rooms and ticket office are being atted up there. Passengers will take the electric cars at the Edgewood avenue, opposite office and in ten minutes will be at the Inman Park depot where the trains arrive and depart.

The Georgia, Carolina and Northern's freight tariff sheet is practically completed. Considerable interest is felt in the road's rates. As the new line is the short one through a large territory, a shaking up of rates is naturally looked for. Freight will be received and delivered, at the Edgewood avenue depot. The first freight train will be put on in about two weeks. Inquiries are being received adily as to the freight schedule and charges, and business in being saved to give the road a good send off.

TERMINAL WILL SELL

And Speyer & Co. Are said to Be After the A2,200 Shares of Central.

New York, April 11.—(Csecial.)—It was reported in Wall street today that negotiations were in progress looking to the purchase of the 40,000 shares of the Georgia Central stock held by the Richmond Terminal company. The alleged purchasers minal company. The alleged purchasers were Messrs. Speyer & Co., the bankers who financed the five-million-dollar floating debt of the Georgia Central last summer. who financed the five-million-dollar floating debt of the Georgia Central last summer. According to the rumor, the purchase was to be effected by the exchange of $7,500,000 of the Terminal 5 per cent bonds for the 40,000 shares of stock. At the offices of the Richmond Terminal company it was said today that the only steps that had been taken in the matter were in the shape of suggestions from various sources advising the exchange. Since then nothing has been done or was expected to come of it.

The arrival in town today of Mr. H. M. Comer, president of the Georgia Central, was thought to be connected with the deal, and he was said to have been in conference with the head of the firm of Speyer & Co. The fact that the Terminal company is enjoined by the Georgia courts from voting the Central stock, and the general opposition to their ownership of it in Georgia, makes it likely that the Terminal company would be glad to sell the stock at a fair price. So much was intimated today.

The Richmond Terminal company came into possession of the Georgia Central stock in 1887. In that year a syndicate, composed of Alfred Sully, J. L. Rice, John C. and Pat Calhoun and H. B. Hollins & Co., purchased the 40,000 shares of the Georgia Central, mostly in Savannah. These gentlemen then formed the Georgia company, which issued against the Central stock $4,000,000 in stock. After some delay the Terminal company purchased the $4,000,000 of stock at 35, thus acquiring control of the road for $8,000,000.

one terminal company in the $12,000,000 of stock at 35, thus acquiring control of the road for $8,000,000. The Georgia Central stock was then deposited with the Central Trust Company as security for the Georgia company's bonds. It will be seen that the Central stock thus cost the Terminal company in the neighborhood of two hundred dollars a share. It is now selling for $60 a share. The purchase was effected by the issuance of Terminal bonds at $2 1-2 and common stock at 25, so that the depreciation in Georgia Central stock has kept up with the Terminal securities. The original stock purchased by the syndicate, which resold to the Terminal company, cost from $75 to $100 a share. Then lacking control, the 6,000 shares of Central stock held by Mrs. Hetty Green were acquired at 132.

Central Employes to Receive Their March

Macon, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The Central officials here received notice this morning that the pay rolls and money would arrive tomorrow, and they are instructed to begin paying off at once.

All employes of the Central and Southwestern who have their headquarters in Macon will have their money in hand before tomorrow night. The amount to be paid out here is over fifty thousand dollars.

The Railroad Won the Case. Augusta, Ga., April II.—(Special.)—In the city court today, the case of William Rhone, the negro who sued the Augusta Railroad Company for $2,000 damage for indignity he suffered in being put off the electric car by a conductor, who rejused to accept a delaced 5-cent piece for fare, was tried. The coin Rhone offered for fare was worn slick on one side. He claimed that the conductor radely ejected him from the car, but, with all that, he lost his case. The jury returned a verdict for the railroad.

Rains Around Godsden Gadsden. Ala., April 11.—(Special.)—A hard rain began failing again early this morning and continued throughout the day. It is still cloudy and very cool, and it is feared the fruit crop will be seriously damased. The Coossiver continues to rise steadily and is now thiree feet above low water. The damage is heavy.

TROUBLE IN CLAY

Because of Unequal Division of the School Fund.

THE COUNTRY VS. THE TOWN.

Thirty-Eight Country School Teachers Sendja Protest to the State School Commissioner.

There is trouble over the apportion ment of the school fund in Clay county. Thirty-eight teachers have signed a protest against the action of the board of education, and the state school commis sioner has been appealed to in behalf of the county schools.

The trouble is that the schools in Fort Gaines and Bluffton, with about one-fifth of the school attendance, are getting twothirds of the fund.

About a month ago Commissioner Brad-well received a letter from a respectable teacher of Clay county, alleging this state of affairs and asking his interference. The commissioner wrote at once to the county school commissioner of Clay county, asking a full statement of the disbursement of the school fund in that bursement of the school fund in that county. This has not yet been received, but the county school commissioner has sent to Colonel Bradwell a copy of the presentments of the grand jury, in which the action of the board of education was endorsed in general terms without any discussion of the details of the apportionment.

The state school commissioner has since received a letter from a well-known teacher of Clay county who speaks in caustic terms of the grand jury's action. "Clay county," said he, "like many others, is controlled by the towns in almost all cases, and for many years the country schools have been neglected, much to their detriment, while the town schools have fattened on the larger share of the public funds. The people of the country have given little attention to such matters until now, and when they ask for their until now, and when they ask for their rights, they are met with the plea that there is not money enough to make good schools all over the county, and conse-quently the board thinks best to approquenty the board tanks best to appro-priate the funds to the upbuilding of two schools in the county. The justice of this argument, we fall to see. The last grand jury, composed almost entirely of men from the towns of Blufton and Fort Gaines, there being only three from the country on that jury, saw fit to commend alike the action of the board and the county school commissioner. This I believe to have been done for a purpose.

"If I did not know that you were deeply interested in the country schools I would feel a delicacy in making such demands as the above, but believing that you will as the above, but believing that you will place the proper construction on them, we await an early reply."

The statement made by the teachers is that the Clay county quota of the school fund is $4,350, of which $1,200 is given to blacks and $3,150 to whites. Of this $0,150, the school at Fort Gaines gets $1,200 and the one at Bluffton $1,000, while the rest of the county only receives $950. The average attendance at Fort Gaines, so the complainants say, is Fort Gaines, so the complainants say, is 100, and that at Bluffton 106. They claim that these are boarding schools, with many non-resident pupils, including some from other Georgia counties and some Alabama, so the county teachers that Fort Gaines and Bluffton are getting about $20 per capita for their ance of the county is about one thousand, the white country schools have several times the average attendance of the schools at Fort Gaines and Bluffton. The letter to the commissioner mentioned one country school with an average attendance of 23 or 24, which received only $75 from the fund, and says that since the matter was agitated, the board of education sought to make a compromise by increasing the pay of country teachers with an attendance of 20 number from by increasing the pay of country teachers with an attendance of 20 pupils from $125 to $175, but they inserted a clause making the last $50 contingent upon the moneys being in the treasury, which the country teachers think is not probable. Commissioner Bradwell has written both sides for full information and is going to the bottom of the affiar.

Trouble in Fayette

There is another ugly snarl in Fayette county. The state school commissioner has received letters from teachers of that county complaining that they are charged $1 for each examination and are charged $1 for each examination and are required to sign a contract agreeing to pay $0 cents for each $50 of their salary after the first fifty. A sample of such a contract was enclosed to the commissioner, and it has a clause saying that the money arising from these fees is for the use of the board.

The law gives the county board of equestion are compensation but a very notion.

The law gives the county board of education no compensation but exemption from jury duty, and Commissioner Bradwell says there is no legal warrant for the exaction of such fees as are alleged to have been collected from the teachers in Fayette county. He has written the county school commissioner to report what was done, and the matter will be thoroughly investigated to determine whether or not the charges are true.

A Wonderful Machine.

There is no doubt that man is a fine mechanism, but like every other machine he wears out by friction. It is said that he is born again every two or three years. His body is virtually re-made from food. To retard this making over is radically wrong, as a man loses so much vitality in the delayed process that it takes a long time to recuperate. The process of making anew is so accelerated by purging with Brandreth's Pills that a new man, as it were, may be made in two or three months, and the change in the mechanism is such that the worn out part is replaced by the new without the usual running down of the entire machine. You don't have to stop for repairs. Purge away with Brandreth's Pills the old, diseased and worn out body. They are purely vegetable, absolutely harmless, and safe to take at any time.

Sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

your case or of how long standing, by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Catarrh can be cured. Not with the poisonous, irritating snuffs and strong, caustic solutions, that simply palliate for a time, or perhaps, drive the disease to the lungs—but with Dr. Sage's Remedy.

The worst cases yield to its mild, soothing, cleansing and healing properties. "Cold in the Head," needs but a few applications. Catarrhal Headache, and all the effects of Catarrh in the Head—such as offensive breath, loss or impairment of the senses of taste, smell and hearing, watering or weak eyes—are at once relieved and cured.

In thousands of cases, where everything else has failed, Dr. Sage's Remedy has produced perfect and permanent cures. That gives its proprietors faith to make the offer. It's $500, or a cura. They mean to pay you, if they can't cure you.

ATLANTA, GA., April 12, 1892.

The Constitution and the Farmers. Occasionally we find in the columns of some of our contemporaries references to The Constitution which contain matter more important than mere friendly or neighborly notes of appreciation. Such a reference is the following from The Brunswick Times:

Brunswick Times:

The Atlanta Constitution has consistently and wisely urged the Georgia democrats to conciliation and brotherliness. It has fought against factional division in their ranks. It has, led all the southern newspapers in its foresight of the pending difficulties between allignee and non-alliance democrats, and it has done more than any other of the great southern dailies to prevent a dangerous breach between them.

Now, we care nothing whatever

Now, we care nothing whatever the advertising that must accompany such a paragraph the foregoing; we do not seek and we have never sought it; but it is pleasant to know that at least one writer who has the responsibilities of journalism upon him has caught the drift of things, has cut across (as it were) and discovered the aim and purpose of The Constitution, and has the generosity to proclaim the fact and endorse it.

In contrast with this recognition, which is pleasing, we have the antics of the giddy, and the speculations of the som ber-minded, which are amusing.

Many of the brethren are always ready to make a target of The Constitution They shoot their straw arrows and fall back with a smile of victory. When the faint patter of some one beating a tin-pan is heard in the distance, we know for a certainty that some editor has let fly at us and is noisily celebrating the event in the solitudes. One or two of these straw arrows we have gathered up as curiosities. The tag of one is that The Constitution is leading the farmers into the third party, of another that we are driving the farmers out of the party by contending that Wall street and its agencles had to do with the suppression of the silver bill in the house of representatives. There are others in the same general color and outline, all going to show that there is dissatisfaction among the brethren, great and small, with the policy of The Constitution.

Well. The Constitution cannot furnish sight to those who cannot see; it cannot tear folly's cap from the heads of those who were born to wear it. There are some performances that do not belong to the routine of journalism. We cannot hope to please the narrow-minded, or justify ourselves to those who lack thought, or satisfy those who are dull of comprehension. We cannot undertake to pause to explain the policy of The Constitution to every ninny who runs gibbering by.

Yet the attitude of this paper at this moment is precisely what we intended it should be when we began two years ago to defend the farmers of Georgia and the south against the foolish and unjust attacks of newspapers which pretended then and pretend now to be the only genuine depositories and purveyors of democratic doctrine. With no special gift of prophecy we have forseen the situation that exists today and our readers have been prepared for it. We have opposed and we shall continue to oppose that element in the party which has abused the farmers of Georgia, first, for going into the alliance, and, second, for formulating and preferring their demands. We have contended and we shall continue to contend that the demands of the farmers represent a condition that is intolerable and must be remedied: that the agitation of the farmers is the result of a financial dearth and depression which demands prompt relief.

Instead of nagging at the farmers, and depreciating their agitation, and making light of their demands, The Constitution has recognized not only the justice but the necessity of their movement. It has not misjudged their motives nor misunderstood their purposes because some of the politicians who have allied themwith the movement have gone beyond the line of doctrinal prudence. It has measured the farmers by their own splendid record of patriotic conservatism; it has gauged their movement by the pressure of unhappy conditions which no sane man can ignore. Sympathizing earnestly and sincerely with the farmers, The Constitution has placed itself in a position to make its influence felt among them.

Yet how are we pursued by the folly of some of the editorial brethren! If the newspapers of Georgia had followed the policy of The Constitution, not with desire to make capital out it, but from a sense the third party of this state would never have been heard of by so much as a whisper. Today, wherever there is a tendency among the farmers to go into the third party we may be sure the tendency has developed out of the folly of some of the small politicians or the senseless policy of some of the so-called democratic editors. We have recently been invited by a daily newspaper to a discussion of the postponement of the free coinage bill. The Constitution had said that the postponement was brought about by the influ ence of Wall street acting in concert with the republican minority. The contemporary to which we have referred chales the statement and says that the postponement is the result of democratic policy. A more powerful argument this could not be placed in the mou the third party leaders. Convince the far-mers that the free coinage bill has been purposely dropped by a body having an overwhe lming democratic majority, and the third party agitators at once prophets of importance. Why should any democrat, or even the democratic party itself, play into the hands of these third party leaders? Another so-called democratic paper declares that those who hold to the Ocala demands should be kicked out of the party. Here is more ammunition for the third party agitators. Before the demands of the farmers are seriously criticised, the events which occasioned them-the situation out of which they springshould be studied. The farmers, or any other class, have a right to form organizations for their common benefit and protection. The farmers, or any other class, have the right to make demands and submit them to the party with which they act. The Ocala demands are purely tentative. They touch the evils for which the farmers want remedies. Let the democratic party deal with these demands fairly and squarely.

There was never anything heard of the third party in Georgia until certain democratic and pretended leaders undertook to set in motion the machinery of proscription and intolerance. We should think they have gone for enough to discover that their system of dragooning is not as popular now as it has been. And yet, some of them have not gone far enough. There are would-be leaders in Georgia today who would be glad to drive the farmers out of the party. They would like to see it as small as the republican party, for they see in that contingency an opening for them to play the part of Buck and his little coterie.

Yet, if The Constitution can prevent it—and it is tolerably well equipped for the campaign-it doesn't propose that the party shall get small enough in Georgia for these small men to handle it.

An Example to Be Followed.

It is to be hoped that none of our readers will fail to examine the resolutions of the Decatur suballiance, of De Kalb county, in another column.

These resolutions reflect the sentiments of all thoughtful and patriotic alliancemen and all true democrats. They call attention to facts which should not be forgotton in the excitement of the campaign. As our alliance friends state in their preamble, their order was not organized to form a new party, and its declaration of purposes, and the Ocala platform, are in perfect accord with the principles of Jefferson democracy. A third party, so far from being needed, would divide the alliance, break up the solid south, and threaten us with republican and negro domination.

An attempt to organize a third party is denounced as a political crime, and the pension-grab plank in the St. Louis platform receives its merited exposure and excoriation. These old-fashioned farmers propose to show the world that they can be alliancemen and democrats, too. They endorse in ringing words the loyal and patriotic course of Hon. L. F. Livingston, and the work of The Constitution in "its splendid defense and advocacy of alliance and democratic principles, and its patriotic and brilliant efforts in behalf of union and harmony among the white people of the south.

It is not too much to say that the Decaurt suballiance has simplified the situation, and has clearly defined the true position and the duty of democratic alliancemen. An imperative necessity requires the whites of the south to pull together, or see their civilization and prosperity submerged by a black wave of despotism or anarchy. They see a prosprinciples through the organized democ racy, but they can look for nothing but disaster and defeat if they countenance a third party.

This is the situation . Democratic alliancemen have no time to lose in rallying around the champions and the newspapers devoted to the principles and the reforms held in common by the alliance and the Jeffersonian democracy. Division means danger and defeat.

Democrats who are cussing out the farmers and the Ocala demands should ome down from their perch. Without the farmers, the democratic party in Georgia wouldn't be much bigger than Buck's talented organization.

Editors who are trying to prove that the democrats suppressed the free-coinage bill in the house should go slow. The third party is already large enough in Georgia.

Stanton's Book in South Carolin From The Charleston News and Courier.
This is a charming little volume, and it hardly needed the graceful preface with which Joel Chandler Harris introduces it to the public. Mr. Stanton has the true lyric touch; his verses are simple, spontaneous and sincere, and he may truly say:

"I do not sing because I must, And pipe but as the linnets sing."

The poems which this book contains are all brief, and their chief characteristics are their tenderness and their melody. We could quote largely from the volume, but our space will only permit us to copy one little poem, which seems to us nearly perfect of its kind. It is

> For you, dear heart, the light—God's smile, wher'er you be, And if He will—the night, Only the night for me For you Love's own dear land

Of roses, fair and free; And if you will—no hand To give a rose to me. For you Love's dearest bliss In all the years to be; And if you will—no kiss

Of any love for me. Thankful to know you blest, When God your brow adorns With the sweet roses of His rest, I thank Him for the thorns!

We may also specially mention the poems entitled, "Lynched," "At Last," "The Master's Coming," "Love's Visitor," "Hunt Him Down," "The New Love and the Old" and "Wearyin' for You." Charlestonlans should remember that Mr. Stanton's poem, "Saint Michael's Bells," also contained in this volume, is by long odds the best poem which that dearly loved chime has inspired. We hope Mr. Stanton's book will be largely circulated and that he will derive both fame and profit and that he will derive both fame and profit from its publication. The south is seldom over kind to its singers, but the popularity which many of these verses have already at tained gives earnest, perhaps, of a better than usual for these modest "Songs of Day."

"MARCHING THROUGH GEORGIA."

The Sentiment for Democratic Victory Sweeping the State.

The democrats of Georgia are in favor of victory this time, and they are putting themselves on record on that line. There is not the shadow of doubt that the state convention which meets in Atlanta on the 18th of May will be overwhelmingly in favor of Hill, as between Hill and Cleveland. Democratic sentiment in the state has crystallized to such an extent against the terrible blunder that the nomination of Cleveland would mean that no one who is acquainted with the situation now claims that Cleveland has any chance for carrying the Georgia delegation at Chicago.

Fourteen counties have so far selected delegates Of the delegates chosen the vote is as follows:

MADISON COUNTY'S VOTE.

Hon. D. W. Meadow, Who Heads the Ticket, for Hill.

Athens, Ga., April 11.—(Special.)—The effort to make it appear that Madison county's vote is not for Hill will be futile.

While it is true that Mr. McGowan, one of the delegation, may be against Hill, he Cleveland, and so announces openly, his views being in favor of some western man. Hon. David W. Meadow, the brilliant young attorney from the "Free State," who is on the delegation, is for Hill and against Cleveland, and so announces openly. It is just as The Constitu-tion said when it announced that Mr. Meadow was for Hill.

Not one man in ten in northeast Georgia can be found who favors Cleveland as against Hill, and the general impression is that the nomination of Cleveland would mean certain defeat to the democratic party.

"Now that Major Blance is out of the way it is more than likely that Colonel T. Warren Akin will capture the third party persimmon." I am not a third party man.

I am not a third party man.

I am in possession of information I consider reliable that the third party movement is being alded and fostered by republican party managers for the double purpose of injuring democracy and causing such strife and disorder in the south, as will serve as a pretext and excuse for again attempting to put us under a force bill.

I am no candidate for any office. I do not lift my voice to secure any benefit to myself in which all my fellow citizens have not a common share. Happy and honored will I feel, and not altogether unprepared to die, if I can go to my grave knowing that in my day and time I did something, however humble, to save dear Georgia from the horror and the shame of a bastard race.

About Little Rhody.

From The Milwaukee Sentinel.

The result of the Rhode Island election is seriously depressing for the prospects of Mr. Cleveland. The combined forces of Cleveland democracy and mugwumpery had been concentrated on the effort to carry that little state. From The New York Advertiser.

The legislature is apparently republican. This is the result that was anticipated. The majestic effort made by Mr. Cleveland and his friends has not produced startling results. What would have happened had not Mr. Cleveland and his friends made a heroic fight for the state cannot be estimated. The fact is there has been no great political revolution in Rhode Island, and, all things considered, Mr. Cleveland has not helped himself much.

SOME CASES OF WANT

Reported from the Exposition Cotton Mills District.

MEETING CALLED FOR TODAY

To Consider Them-Conflicting Statement Concerning the Extent of the Need.

A Number of Cases of Messles.

This morning at the First Baptist church a meeting of citizens will be held to consider the reports of destitution and want in the Exposition cotton mills district and, if such want exists, to promptly provide the means that may be necessary to allay all suffering.

That meeting is called by Rev. Dr. Hawthorne, who yesterday visited the district in question and who, in a communi cation to The Constitution published below, tells of the suffering he found.

Yesterday a Constitution reporter visited the scene; talked with the sick, with the officers of the Exposition company and with ladies and gentlemen active in mission work in that locality. These people, while acknowledging that there is the illness out there about which Dr. Hawthorne writes, all of them repudiate some of the most sensational statements made in a publica-tion yesterday afternoon.

These statements were that there was famine at the Exposition mills "as terrible as that is the czar's domain;" that "the living are starying by degrees, the dead are unburied;" that "many of the sufferers will be relieved by death before tomorrow

Dr. Hawthorne's Statement. Dr. Hawthorne's statement of what he found out there is given in the following communication: Editor Constitution: Please permit me to make a brief statement to the public con-cerning the sick and destitute families in the cerning the sick and destitute families in the vicinity of the Exposition Cotton mills. In company with Mrs. Easterlin, who has given much time and labor to the relief of these distressed people. I went out yesterday morning to see for myself their sad condition. After visiting six or seven families, I was so appalled by their sufferings and destitution, that I immediately returned to the city to see what could be done for them. About sixty dollars and some articles of food and clothing have already been contributed, which will be turned over to a relief committee to be appointed by the meeting at the First Baptist church this morning.

That the public may have some conception of the distress I will state, that I found one family, in which there were eight children

The father of these sick children had gone away to seek employment and the mother seemed to be almost ex-hausted from protracted care and labor. In nausted from protracted care and labor. In another house I saw a mother and three children in the same bed, all of whom were very ill. In the same neighborhood I saw a mother lying in an almost unconscious state with sick children on either side of her. In some of these homes there was no fire, and no fuel, and there were all the indications of the extremest poverty.

I was told that there are many families in that community, besides those which I visited whose condition is very deplorable. What can be done for their relief should be one quickly.

Mr. Cochran works in a store outside the mill grounds. The members of his family work in the mills. Mrs. Cochran is in the rear room of the little house, very ill with a desperately ill child on either side of her. In the front room are four more of the children, who are recovering from the measles. They are dependent for support on the father, who has given up his business to nurse them. Now they are deprived of his support and need both food and clothing. The ladies of the Baptist mission have been holding their meetings in the front room and ing their meetings in the front room and say that the Cochrans are a most de-say that the Cochrans are a most serving family—

In the McIntyre family there are Mrs. McIntyre and six little children. All are down with the measles and no one of the family has any money. They are lying two in a bed and seem very ill. But the disease has spent itself in their case and they may recover. This family is in need of food and fire wood.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes are both ill. Mr. Hughes has had the grip and is still unable to work. Seven of the children are down with the measles and one, an infant, is very low. They need both food and clothing.

Mrs. Owens, a widow, has three children in bed and is ill herself. There was no fire in her room when the ladies called, and no one to even hand her water. Their money is now all gone and no member of the little household is working. It will certainly not be misplaced charity to send this family some clothing and food.

Mrs. Adams is a widow with two sons. One of them. Tommy, is a cripple and has never walked. The other boy is her only support and on his wages of 50 cents per day this family of three has lived. They say that his wages have been cut down to 45 earls. This family has had some hard times, but they have stood them bravely. They now need a nurse and food.

The Lees have two boys just taken down Saturday. They lie in one bed behind the door in the family living room. Across the room in another bed are their two sisters, both very low. This family has still a small store of hard earned money.

In the Grimes family there are three cases. Here also a nurse is needed.

There has been but one death, however. That was an infant of the McIntyre family, who was buried several days ago.

The above is the statement of the cases as given by the ladies of the Baptist mission to a Constitution reporter.

The Superintendent Talks.

Out at the mills, the officers do not take at all kindly to the exaggerations published concerning the state of their employes. Superintendent Henderson, in speaking of the matter, said:

"No, there are no utterly destitute people in our employ. Neither do they die and remain unburied. And our mill is being run right along now, and you can say ple in our employ. Neither do they die and remain unburied. And our mill is being run right along now, and you can ask any of our operatives if there is any such suffering as is told of in the evening papers. The operatives are getting rather tired of having all sorts of stories told about them. They live in a neat, comfortable way, and don't want their settlement dragged in the papers, and given the reputation of being a squalid and unhealthy place. As to our paying poor wages, you can look at our books, and see how we stand. Here is the account. Five hundred and fifty hands are working in the building now, and they receive about two thousand, four hundred dollars every two weeks. We pay out about seventy-five thousand dollars every year, of which not over $10,000 is traded out in our store. Any one of our ecople can, by applying at the office, get either money or script—the small tickets on the company's store—and pay it back out of their next wages. Now, if you will come on into the operating rooms, I'll show you whether our people are 'thinly clad and emaciated.'"

The long wings of the building were filled with humming machinery, beside which were probably 150 young girls, who were far from being either thinly clad or emaciated.

were far from being either thinly clad or emaciated.

"I'll take you around to all the houses, and you can see for yourself whether they are hovels or good houses," said Superintendent Henderson, "and you can ask each one of them if they suffer for anything that we can give them. Why, if there was anything like the suffering that the evening papers say there is here. I'd go and get doctors for them myself."

The people are as well situated as any in the employ of any factory in this country. The mills are on a hill, and the drainage is as good as can be found anywhere. Doctors Childs, Pierce and Murphey are in attendance upon the sick. There are about two hundred of the houses, and they are fairly well built houses.

A large number of the opratives, who were questioned concerning their condimer questioned concerning their condimer questioned concerning their condimere homes, there was no real want.

The Meeting Today.

The Meeting Today.

The meeting this merning at the First Baptist church will be an interesting one. Yesterday afternoon Dr. Hawthorne raised about sixty dollars, with which he sent medicines and necessarice to some of the sick families. At today's meeting plans will be perfected by which all of the needy may be given prompt and practical assistance. That meeting, which will be held at 9 o'clock, should be largely attended.

THE WEEM'S ROBBERY.

Several Arrests Made in Birmingham Yesterday. A few days age the Constitution gave the full story of the robbing of cars on the Georgia Pacific railroad at Weems station, and also of the attempt to wreck a Louisville and Nashville train below Birwinskille mingham.

It seems that the sequel is about to come to light in the Weems station case, but as yet it is doubtful as to what the sequel will be. Two conflicting reports are heard of the Two conflicting reports are heard of the arrest of the parties who did the work. Here is one:

The vigorous search being made for the mail robbers on the Georgia Pacific bore its first fruits yesterday morning.

It resulted in the arrest of Ton Colé, an Atlanta boy who has gained considerable notoriety during the past few years.

And the case against him seems a very strong one.

strong one.

Ever since the robbery two weeks ago, officials of Uncle Sam have worked assiduously on the case. Inspectors Baird and Forsyth lent their attention and energy to tracing down the daring men.

At the same time Detective Wooster, of the express company, and the local detective force were carefully at work in their endeavors to apprehend the guilty men.

And the arrest made yesterday has caused them to renew their efforts.

Several days ago Detective Wooster went to Birmingham on a clue that he had gotten. He looked carefully over the ground and very soon secured evidence that led him to suspect Tom Cole.

From Atlanta he obtained fresh testimony. On Sunday he learned that the much wanted man was in the city and night before last telegraphed to Captain Wright to arrest him.

Yesterday morning after a vigorous search over the city and a visit to the customary haunts of Cole, he was discovered to be at the stockade. He was working on the streets and a telephone message asked that he be kept in readiness to be brought back to the city.

asked that he be kept in readiness to be brought back to the city.

About 3 o'clock Officer Flynn brought the prisoner to police headquarters. He had served four days out of a thirty days sentence imposed upon him in two cases of disorderly conduct.

Young Cole was then taken to the detective's room and there closely questioned. On March 8th he had left the Birningham prison after a term of six months and twenty days. He arrived in Atlanta a week ago and almost immediately was arrested by Patrolmen Seals and Steint for a quarrel with a companion named Johnson.

Between those periods the robbery occurred and as to his whereabouts then he was closely questioned.

But about that time he fell in with several associates, who changed the boy completely. Since then he has gotten into frequent trouble and become a familiar figure in the police circles of the two states.

Cole is twenty-two or three years old and a rather well-educated and intelligent young fellow. He has a boyish face that would never impress one of a desperate man being behind it.

His arrest may prove to be an important one and may lead to the arrest of all the guilty parties.

The Story from Birmingham. The following story was t elegrap The Constitution from Birmingham

The Constitution from Birmingham last night:
Birmingham, Ala., April 11.—At Wilhite station, between Birmingham and Decator, on the Louisville and Nashville road, five negro men broke open a car of meat on a freight train this morning that had stopped for water, their purpose evidently being to steal a ride. Two brakemen saw the men and attempted to drive them off, but were unsuccessful. The train ran a short distance and then stopped at the station proper, and the men left the car and ran off into the woods.

tance and then stopped at the station proper, and the men left the car and ran off into the woods.

The matter was reported to the officers of the law at Falkville and they started out in search of the men. They came up with them at 8 o'clock and a vight occurred, the negroes opening on the officers with revolvers. One of the negroes fell mortally wounded and another was captured, but the others made their escape, but were subsequently arrested with the exception of one man, who was wounded. He gave the mames of Tom Headen, Henry Williams, Jerry Posey and Tom Rennell. One of the gang is still at large, but his capture is certain. Tom Headen, the first man arrested, was put in iail at Culliman. The others were taken to Decatur. Headen made a confession to the effect that he and his associates were the persons who attempted to wreck a Louiswille and Nashville train at Boyles three weeks ago, and who succeeded in robbing a Georgia Pacific train at Weems station two weeks ago. He says that Tom Rennell held the engineer, while Tom Wright went through the mail car and he (Headen) stood guard on the outside. They were trying to leave the country when captured. Owing to the high water in all the streams they had to keep to the railroad and decided to steal a ride on the train. It is believed that Headen has told a truthful story, though the names given are believed to be facilitors.

MAYOR HEMPHILL ENDORSED.

The Methodist Ministers of Atlanta Ap

Yesterday there was a meeting of the Methodist ministers of Atlanta.

The meeting was held at Trinity church, and was presided over by Rev. Mr. Robbins, pastor of the First Methodist church. After the meeting had finished with routine work, the question of endorsing the mayor's veto of the ordinance to allow the cyclorama to open on Sundays came up.

A discussion followed, in which the mayor, was praised for closing the cyclorama by his veto.

On motion, his course was endorsed by a unanimous vote of those present.

There were about a dozen preachers there.

The hook and ladder building on Broad street, near the bridge, will be sold at public outcry today, by the inimitable auction-Colonel George W. Adair. The building is a valuable piece of cen-ral property and its sale will be an event of interest to the real

The lower floor would make a splendid storeroom, and the two upper floors are splendidly adapted for use as office.

The first floor is at present used for the hook and ladder company; the firemen occupy the second floor as a sleeping room and the third and the top floor is used by Chief Joyner and his family.

The building has a twenty-five foot front and runs back sixty feet. To the rear of the building is a five-foot alley. The building is sandwiched between the three-story building owned by Dr. E. L. Connally, which adjoins the railroad, and a building owned by Mr. W. D. Grant, of the same size, as the hook and ladder building.

The sale will occur this morning at 11 o'clock, and will be conducted by Colonel George W. Adair.

Preliminary to the sale Colonel Adair will give a full history of the building in his own original way, which cannot fail to capture his audience.

The terms of sale are extremely easy, and a fine opportunity is offered to capital-lsts and investors.

Ists and investors.

The terms are one-third cash and the balsnee in one and two years at 7 per cent, or all cash, as the purchaser may chose.

Besides the easy terms offered by the city the property will be exempt from taxation during the years of 1892, '93 and 94.

This, in itself, is a big inducement to the purchaser.

The city will occupy the building until

The city will occupy the building until the new fire headquarters are completed, which will be some time during the month of October. The city will pay a rental to the purchaser not exceeding 7 per cent on the amount of the sale of the property.

A Historic Building.

The building which will be sold today is closely associated with the very earliest history of Atlanta's fire department, reaching back to a period when the volunteer department was in the zenith of its glory. The building was erected, just as it stands today, twenty-one years ago by the volunteer firemen of Atlanta. The volunteer boys found themselves without a headquarters and they determined to put up the building.

Such spirits as those of Captain Joyner, quarters and they determined to put up the building.

Such spirits as those of Captain Joyner, Mr. Sam M. Inman, Robert J. Lowry, John H. James, A. L. Waldo, R. F. Maddox and many others were then associated with the volunteer department and it was they who conceived and executed the plan of putting up the building which will be sold today.

Out of their own private purses they brought the money to pay for the erection of the building and it was erected.

It was a joyous day for the fire department when they moved into the new building, twenty-one years ago. Cap Joyner was then foreman and has since been connected with the department continuously. In January, 1882, the property was sold at public outcry for $10,000 Mr. R. H. Knapp was the auctioneer and Captain J. W. English, who was then mayor, bought the building for the city. So it has never been used for any other purpose than for the hook and ladder company.

To illustrate the rapid rise in real estate values in Atlanta, this piece of property brought $10,500 ten years ago. Today it will bring about three times that sum.

THE SNAKE IS IN THE GRASS.

Livingston Shows Up the Foul Method of the St. Louis Convention—S Private Letters Published.

"It is a palpable outrage upon the farmers "What is an outrage, Colonel Living-

"Why, this 'make believe' that there is "Why, this 'make believe' that there is no pension plank in the third-party platform. How the leaders of the third party can go around telling the Georgia farmers that it is not there, when it is there in cold type, and acknowledged to be there by those who framed the platform, I can't, for the life of me, make out."

It was in Colonel Livingston's room, at the Markham house, that he thus spoke to a Constitution representative, and he a Constitution representative, and he crossed his legs, leaned back in his chair, crossed his legs, leaned back in ms char, smoked vigorously at his cigar, and looked thoughtfully upon the floor for a long time. "A man must be insensible to the finer feelings which go to make a man who can sit idly by without a thought of deep pity for that farmer who will be led away from his layer for the south in this feeling up. his love for the south in this fashion, un-consciously, blinded. Surely they will cont back to their south when they see the truth. Surely, pride will not keep them from a free acknowledgement of their error and an honest atonement for it."

And the colonel puffed again and again with determination at his cigar stump that was fast burning down to his thin and clean-shaven lip.

"The trouble is, colonel, many of the farmers have had no positive proof of the foulness of the St. Louis convention. They have had no means of finding out whether the pension plank was there or not."

"Perhaps. Well, I was there myself, and it is, I reckon, pretty hard for one who was not there to fancy how unscupulous was to the control of ous were their antics. Here, for instance, is an extract from an editorial in Frances E. Willard's paper. Miss Willard was chairman of the subcommittee, to which was submitted two questions-those of woman's suffrage and prohibition. They passed the committee with but two dissenting voices.

"Now, then, this is what she writes about the work in an editorial in her paper."

Colonel Livingston read aloud:
During this time the suffrage plank was adopted on count by the chairmon, Hugh Cavanaugh, by sixty-seven to twenty-four, and on a division insisted on by the opposition, by lifty-five to twenty-five. Robert Schilling, the noted German from Milwankee, ted the opposition with southern members, who, while personally in favor of the planks, insisted that with them they should but antagonize their constituencies and the women of the south.

Later on the temperance plank was laid upon the table, and after 7:30 o'clock a. m., when our white-ribboners had gone and when the committee of over one hundred was represented but by a handful of determined opponents, the suffrage resolution was reconsidered and dropped. This is supposed to have been upon the principle that "all's fair in politics." "Now, then, this is what she writes about "This shows," resumed Colonel Living This shows, resumed Colonel Livingston, "how unscrapulous were their methods there, and I wish every farmer in the south could know it."

"Wasn't Miss Willard vice president of the convention, colonel?"
"Yes, and a member of the committee on

"Is it true that you have in your possession a letter from her stating positively that the pension plank is in the platform?"

"Yes."

"Let's see it."

Colonel Livingston went down into his valise—even down under the shirts and things, where he kept his papers as sacred treasures—and pulled out the letter.

"The letter was received by Mrs. Davidson, of Washington," he went on to explain, "in reply to a letter from her inquiring of Miss Willard if plank 7, referring to pensions, and usually numbered 12 in the regular plafform books—whether it was adopted by the platform committee and afterwards by the convention; and to her heat recollection was it, and is it now, a terwards by the convention; and to her best recollection was it, and is it now, a part of the platform? The section was quoted from Miss Willard's paper, The Union Signal, as follows:

"We demand that the government issue legal tender notes and pay the union soldiers the difference between the price of the depreciated money in which he was paid in gold."

"What was the answer Miss Willard wrote?"

"Here it is," and Colonel Livingston read

"What was the answer Miss Willard wrote?"

"Here it is," and Colonel Livingston read the letter:

Woodland Park Hotel, Anburndale, Mass. March 25 1892.—Mrs. E. R. Davidson, 274 N. Capitol Street, Washington, D. C.—Dear Friend: I have not at hand the platform of the industrial conference. But it was stated correctly I feel sure in the editorial. The resolution of Mrs. Curtis on weman's suffrage was adopted as a resolution but not as a plank in the platform. This was the bone of contention, not its adoption, but including it in the platform.

The seventh demand was a part of the platform. I do not receivally remember its consideration in the committee on platform, but do not think it was greatly debated. It is certainly one of the planks on which the people's party is called to stand so far as I understand the action. Yours with best wishes,

FRANCES WILLARD.

"Ah, if the farmers of Georgia could only take these letters in their hands and read them for themselves," said Colonel Livingston, opening another letter.

"This is one from Mr. Powderly, on the same subject. It is written upon the regular letter heads of the Knights of Labor, and is headed thus: Office of General Master Workman, Order of Knights of Labor—motto, 'Hear Both Sides and Then Judge.'"

The letter read:

Scranton, Pa., April 8.—Hon. L. F. Livingston, Washington, D. C.—Dear Str and Brother: It is my recollection that the resolution adopted by the St. Louis conference, asking the general government to compensate the union soldiers with the difference between greenbacks and the price of gold, during their term of service, was adopted as a part of the platform. Had there been any objection to the resolution at would have called my attention more directly to it, but as it appears to me now, it went through as a part of the platform. Anyway nine-tenths of those who read resolutions and platforms never draw the line between them. Only the makers are technical and touchy over them while in debate. After that they go as one with the public. I have been v yours, More Evidence Still.

"That isn't all," said the colonel, diving down into that valise for more evidence.

"Here is an extract from an editorial in The National Economist, Washington, D. C., dated March '12, 1832, which explains how the present platform as published in the south came to differ with the original platform as adopted at the St. Louis conference:

ference:

"The division into three planks has been done since the adjournment of the convention." The plan of dividing the platform into three planks was suggested to The Economist by Marion Butler, president of the North Carolina State Alliance."

North Carolina State Alliance."

If They Only Knew It.

"I wish with all my heart," said the colonel, throwing the documents all back into his valise and shutting it with a loud snatch. "I do wish the farmers who are being led astray could read these things and see what unscrupulous men these are that pull them apart in the south and open an inroad for the vilest and blackest republicanism.

diet of all of the old soldiers who went from Atlanta.

Colonel W. L. Calboun, president of the Fulton County Confederate Veterans' Association, was about the best pleased delegate who attended the convention.

"If was enthusing, inspiring to be there," said has "Twenty thousand of the old veterans were there, men of history they were, and they became the soldier boys of thirty years ago.

"I never enjoyed anything more than that convention," Colonel Calboun went on. "It was a convention of memories. On Saturday afternoon the great gathering of veterans paraded the streets, and passed in raview before General Gordon. They were carried away with enthusiasm, and as they passed General Gordon they crowded upon him and shook his hands.

"On saturday night a grand public reception was given to the veterans at the Washington Artillery armory, an immense building.

"One of the prettiest scenes I ever saw was at the French opera house the night Senator John W. Daniel, of Virginia, spoke there. On the stage, which will seat five hundred people, were the most distinguished guests, among them Generals Beauregard, Jackson, Longstreet and Stephen V. Lee, who fired one of the first guns at fort Sumter; Wall, Lane, Barrington, P. M. B. Young, Yaugh and many others. Mrs. Davis and Miss Winnie occupied a box to the left of the stage, and were the recipients of a great deal of attention.

"But the prettiest part of the scens, the inspirior part were thirteen practy young ladies.

stage, and were the recipients of a great deal of attention.

"But the prettiest part of the scene, the inspiring part, were thirteen pretty young ladies, sponsors of the thirteen states, each carrying a flag and the prettiest of colors. They occupied seats in the first gallery, directly in front of the stage.

"We had a great time, to be sure. There were many of the old tattered war flags there, and they stirred up the slumbering enthusiasm in the boys. The old rebel yell filled New Orleans, and we got stirred up and wanted to fight again, almost."

The next convention will be held in Birmingham, Ala., at a date to be fixed by General Gordon, commander. The Richmond veterans are going back by twos

MOVEMENT FOR A MALE COLLEGE.

Citizens of Decatur Apply for a Chart and Will Raise a Fund.

The people of Decatur are determined to have a male college that will rival in strength and usefulness the Agnes Scott institute of that place. A few days ago Major W. J. Houston, Mr. G. A. Ramspeck, Hon. M. A. Candler, Professor W. A. Pratt and other citizens of Decatur applied to Decatur superior court fer a charter for the Denald Fraser Boys' High school, and the application will be granted in about three weeks.

The application is for a charter with a capital stock of $25,600, and rules of government similar to those of the Agnes Scott institute. The stockholders will name two trustees, the season of the Presbyterian church two, and the pastor of the Presbyterian church two, and the pastor of the Presbyterian church will be ex-officio trustee. These five will form the governing board.

Major W. J. Houston is the prime mover in the matter and is very actively at work to secure the school. It is stated that a wealthy syndicate owning a large tract of hand near Decatur will subscribe $1,000 to the capital stock of the college. Major W. J. Houston and Dr. R. B. Ridlay are insactive in the matter and a member of the soliciting committee. Several meetings have been held and the prospect is good for raising the required capital.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, April 11.—The market today displayed in main a firm temper on a very moderate volume of business and while there were two or three weak points firmness was extended to the whole list. Foreign purchases of St. Paul, Union Pacific, Eric, Louisville and Nashville and a few others made the temper of the market during the early morning when all of the improvement was made, but the demand was limited. With the closing of the London market there was material decrease in the amount of business done, and except in Coal stocks there was a perceptible falling off in the strength of dealings. After New England, Manhattan was one of the most conspicuous weak points in the list. In this stock a further advance of $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent was followed by a loss of 1\(\frac{1}{2}\), when all interest in its movements ceased and it remained practically stagnant with a majority of the list. The market as a whole displayed few features of note. The strength in London favorities in the forencon, which resulted in an advance extending to 1\(\frac{1}{2}\) per cent, with Union Pacific in the lead, an andvance of 2\(\frac{1}{2}\) per cent in Ocnosolidated gas in the afternoon, being the only notable gain, while losses of over 1 per cent in Atchison, New England and Manhattan neutralized to a large extent early buying. The increased deposits of Richmond and West Point securities served to enhance the value of preferred stock, and it rose from 54 to 58, but common was no more than steadily held, exhibiting no feature whatever. Industrials was comparatively neglected, with the exception of Cordage, which was specially strong and active, scoring a marked im prevenent for the day. The general list was higher at the opening on London demand, and continued to improve slowly as long as that buying, but later under the influence of beariah operations fell away partially. Late strength in Coalers, however, gave a firm temper to trading in the whole list, and the uiet and heavy at 486 %@488; commercia

J. S. Bache & Co.'s Stock Letter.

By Private Wire to A. P. Youngblood. NEW YORK. April 11.—The market abroad was strong and stocks bought today went over to the new settling day. The first prices here were a little better us the buying from abroad amounted to about 1,200 shares. The bull operators here were resting on their bars, but the bears were quite active and made a drive against Atchison and New England, and in the latter tock a young operator, who returned shortly from stock a young operator, who returned shortly from Europe, sold about 5,000 shares of short stock. The stories about this stock are just as blue as they were favorable when the prices were up. Union Pacific was a strong stock all day. There is no doubt that at the next election a change of management will take place and that the Drexel-Vanderbilt interest will assume and that the Drexel-vanderolls interest will assume control of the road. Coal stocks also scored a smail advance as the earnings of this system continue very favorable. It was said in the exchange that a number of securities had been deposited with the new Richmond Terminal committee, and on this theisecurities advanced a point. The general market closed steady and we look for an improvement in prices.

Closed quiet and steady: sales 77,300 bales.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Today's market has been the most active for some weeks. Futures in Liverpool have advanced $66-44d, and an extreme advance of about 13 points had been established here by 1 o'clock. From this there was a slight reaction upon the news that New Orleans receipts tomorrow would be 10,000 bales; but the crop of 1851-92 and its limitations are jast becoming unconsidered influences, and the probabilities of the present planting are every day receiving more attention. The improvement in prices has demonstrated the existence of a much larger short interterest than it was supposed could have existed at the low prices current. This has unquestionably been to a large extent eliminated, and many previous sellers have today been buyers. Such a reversal of operations is almost invariably attended by a reaction, but unquestionably the sentiment with regard to cotton is now changed, and many have acquired sufficient confidence in its value to declare their intention of buying it upon any decline. In Manchester yarns are reported as hardening an I cloths in moderate demand. The half-weekly Bombay movement shows an increase of 5,000 bales in the receipts for the four days, the figures being 34,000 bales, against 31,000 bales last year. Estimates of the week's movement are increased from 55,000 to 60,000 bales. During the afternoon the market became rather easier under the influence of some realising sales and some fresh bear selling, and the close was steady about 5 points below the highest of the day and 768 points advance on Saturday's figures. The market has now had an advance of ½c from the lowest figures touched, and a reaction will not be unnatural or surprising.

**MEW YORK, April 11.—Liverpool this morning came successively 6-64d higher, and the market there was quoted to us active and good throughout the day, while successively 6-64d higher, and the market there was quoted to us active and good throughout the day, while Manchester was also said to be improving. Here the first trades were at an advance of 76% points, which was followed by a further improvement of some 5.6 points. Thereafter the market fluctuated over a range of 66% points in accordance with the preponderance of orders. The receipts at New Obleans tomorrow are expected to be about 10,060 bales, while the interior points have given a fair quantity today, so that these facts rather assisted in easing off than anything else. The buying today is hard to explain, for we cannot trace the same to any definite quarter, nor was there any special short interest which we believe was covered. It seems more than likely that a great part of the trading was against hedges both here and abroad with some little fresh investment buying. On the other hand, we noticed considerable realizing on the part of longs who are apparently willing to take moderate profits with the expectation of being able to replace. This last is entirely a question of circumstances. It is true, that for the time being there is no special interest to warrant any material advance. On the other hand, we do not change our views as to price, even with the improvement that has taken place, and believe that values are reasonable still. There have been a number of messages here today speaking of continued high waters in parts of the south, but we give no great importance to the same, as we believe that planting can be undertaken when the same subsides. aken when the same subsides.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The world seemed to turn on its axis today for the sole benefit of one man—Edward Pardridge, of Chicago. News worth to him hundreds of thousands flashed in from London, from Washing-Pardridge, of Chicago. News worth to him hundreds of the usands flashed in from London, from Washington, even from the far-away ports of the Black seand after a day of wild excitement on 'change, the famous plunger, impassive as stone, stood on the floor of the board of trade receiving frantic congratulations of his brokers informing him that he was richer by at least half a million dolars, and that acting for him they had pounded down the price of wheat 50 on every bushel. His enemies, who it was said, had formed a sort of combination a few days ago to compass his ruin, were themselves made heavy losers and put to utter route. The scene from the latter part of the session was the most exciting that has been witnessed in many a day. From 85%c May wheat dropped by blg jumps to 80%c, and finally closed at 80%c. This is 2%c below the close Saturday night. From the high point on to the low figure Pardridge makes 5c per bushel it is supposed out of his ten-million short line or what amounts to a gain of $500,000. Over and above this it is estimated that he netted considerable on trades and on fluctuations. He was the heaviest buyer and seller and apparently must have made a pot of money out of his scalping deals. During the final moments excitement was at such a high pitch that spectators in the galleries, losing all control of their feelings, shouted with the brokers at every slumph in the market. Bears went wild over their success and men who had it in for Pardridge, some of them at least, joined in what amounted to a general ovation to the bold operator. Everybody was expecting at the opening to see shorts pushed hard in consequence of the depressing government crop estimate sent out from Washington after the close of tradings Saturbold operator. Everybody was expecting at the openng to see shorts pushed hard in consequence of the depressing government crop estimate sent out from Washington after the close of tradings Saturday. The first disappointment to the bulls was a cable reporting the course of foreign markets. It was regarded as the most natural thing in the world that they should start off excited on our own poor crop outlook, and this was relied upon to start the ball here, but to the surprise of everybody Liverpool and London both opened lower and with some evidence of demoralization. It was explained that this was due to an important failure in London, but the fact remained that the English markets were lower, and the domestio markets also showed a haiting tendency and added to the hesitation here. If anybody expected Pardridge to run in they were quickly undeceived; for, on the contrary, his brokers were among the most aggressive sellers right from the start, and kept on the selling side all day and showing no fear even on some of the wildest bulges. New York and St. Louis, operators soon came into line and sold heavily, while there were also a large number of local longs who seemed to despair of getting a much larger longs who seemed to despair of getting a much large bulge and began to realize. Under this concentrate longs who seemed to despair of getting a much larger bulge and began to realize. Under this concentrated selling there was an irregular break of 3c on the price of May, and the feeling gradually became quite bearish. The price of May wheat started strong at 84c bid and with a few sales as high as $4\(\text{hg}\), compared with $5%\(\text{c}\), esllers, at the close of the session on Saturday. The quotation settled down to $3\(\text{c}\), then up with some excitement to $5\(\text{c}\); et then broke irregularly to $3\(\text{hg}\), e, and at 10 'clock was $2\(\text{hg}\). After the noon hour the market had another spasm of weakness, and May went off to $1\(\text{hg}\), reacted to $1\(\text{hg}\), c, and at 10 'clock was $1\(\text{hg}\). There was additional weakness during the last 15 minutes of the session, and May wheat fell to $6\(\text{hg}\)e or thereabouts to the close.

The corn market was not active after the first hour. There was good support even when wheat was domortalized. The opening was strong, and there was an advance of about \(\text{hg}\), putting May \(\text{hg}\) over Saturday. The selling which followed, helped on by the clevator men, together with the break in wheat, simply put the price back to Saturday's figurea.

Outs advanced early with wheat and corn, but weakneed later on with those breaks and closed about was general.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter.

By Private Wire to A. P. Youngblood.

OHICAGO, April II.—Poday closes the wildest and most unantisfactory day for commission houses in the wheat markets of the world that we have had for a long time. Much to the disappointment of holders sables all reported lower prices abroad early. The cause was attributed to a heavy failure in London and the depression in our market at the close Saturlay. Some cables reported that the belief prevailed there that our government report was favorable to the growing crops—but it was generally thought when they received the official report today that foreign houses would be good buyers, and that foreign markets would most likely close higher. Prices advanced from the opening about 20 per bushel when there became some heavy realizing together with large lines thrown on the market by a few noted street sellers. The market became depressed and to add to the pressure, which was under way when the market touched 5tc. Bradstreet came in with a report that the stocks of grain in America, England and the continent were 4,000,000 larger than one year ago. The rush to sell was so great that at times the market was quite panicky and asles were made following one another from \(\frac{1}{2}\times \) to \(\frac{1}{2}\times \) decline. Stop orders at \(\frac{1}{2}\times \) to were executed at about \(\frac{2}{2}\times \) to said size experienced around \(\frac{2}{2}\times \) to were executed at about \(\frac{2}{2}\times \) to the same trouble was experienced around \(\frac{2}{2}\times \) to the in orders. This together with the terrible strain on the brokers in trying to obtain what seemed to them a reasonable price, was the severest strain we have had for some time. Their griefs were almost as severe to inclined to question this Bradstreet report. We notice the London market was 4d per bushel higher focath and reported \(\frac{2}{2}\times \) to their orders. This together with the terrible strain on the brokers in the insist on which higher focath and report By Private Wire to A. P. Youngblood.

REV. MR. STRICKLAND

Gives His Side of the Clarkston

FRANK AND MANLY STATEMENT

Mr. Strickland Is Well Known Here, Having Once Been in Charge of the Central Baptist Church.

Rev. William Henry Strickland, the rell-known Baptist minister who is accused of having so badly whipped one of his pu-pils, Wickliffe Nash, as to the result in his pils, Wickliffe Nash, as to the result in in-death, which charge was investigated by the coroner's jury called to sit over the dead body of young Nash, furnishes the following communication in his own defense.

Mr. Strickland lived for several years in Atlanta, having had charge of the Central Baptist church of this city. A year or two turning to Georgia, located at Clarkston, where he took charge of the Clarkston

He left Atlanta with the esteem and confidence of every member of his congregation and of everybody who knew him. He is a and of everybody who knew him. He is a mative of Gwinnett county and belongs to one of the best and sturdiest of Georgia families. He was a gallant confederate soldier, and has always been an upright Christian gentleman.

Mr. Strickland is naturally very much worried by the charge which has been made against him, which he says is "the first attack on my character during a life of fifty-two years.

worried by the charge which has been made against him, which he says is "the first attack on my character during a life of fifty-two years.

Mr. Stříckland's defense is as follows: Atlanta, Ga., April 11, 1892.—I am principal of the Clarkston academy, in Dekalb county. On the 5th of February last, one of my pupils, Drew Barry, disobeyed me, and in setting the trouble, in words of reproof and reprimand, I stood by him with a switch in my hand, which I had picked up by the side of Mr. Mitchell's orchard fence, "a watersprost," of the size of fry little finger. Wickliffe Nash, another pupil, seeing that I might possibly whip Barry, took his knife from his pocket, opened the large blade and handed it to Barry, who took it in his right hand. I whipped them both, but not as I consider unreasonably. Nash threw up his hand, received a blow on the back of his hand, which I regretted very much, and so stated to him and the pupils generally, I've no doubt the blow on the hand was quite painful. Before leaving the school grounds, I walked over to Mr. Nash's, the father of the boy, to explain the affair. He was absent and I stated the case to Mrs. Nash, who said: "I am glad I have talked with you. I think you whipped wickliffe too hard, but I don't think you had enmity against any o' us or him."

The whipping occurred on Friday afternoon. On Monday following Wickliffe was out on the streets playing marbles, and for nearly two months was seen generally on the streets, walking about, playing marbles, flying his father's meat market.

About six days after the whipping I met the father. Mouroe Nash, in presence of two citizens of Clarkston and we talked over the matter and shook hands and he said he asked no further satisfaction than to withdraw his children from school, which I granted. His two grown sons had, prior to this conference and settlement, attacked me on the cars and used insulting and abusive language and made threats in the presence of ladies and gentlemen, daring me out of the car for a fight, and declaring that the car for a fight, and declaring that they'd knock out my eyes.

I asked the father in our subsequent concrence, "Do you justify this attack of your grown sons, or did you advise it?" He positively disclaimed knowledge or approval, and I believed him.

At that time, I said, "Brother Nash, I am your friend, have ever been, in view of your frank and Christian settlement. Tell your sons who attacked me, I forgive them and whish them well." He replied, "I am much obliged."

Soon after this, the boy Wickliffe, was taken before the grand jury of twenty-three men, the superior court of DeKalb being in session. He was examined and efforts made to find a true bill against me. The effort falled. The father assures me that he did not instigate nor encourage the effort and did not go before ...e grand jury. Since that time he and I have had some friendly dealings in buying and selling.

he and I have had some friendly dealings in buying and selling.

On the 7th of April Wickliffe Nash died. He was in bed but a few days. He died most likely of scrofula, as he had ulcers under his arms, under his jaws and a bad sore mouth. A week ago today he finished a visit of several days in Atlanta, went home, took sick and died Thursday, night last.

I did not beat him cruelly, I did not use a hickory stick. I have had a good many whippings from my father when a boy, that were more severe, I am alive and am fifty years old.

old.

I do not rule my school with the rod. I do not keep and instrument for corporal punishment in my school—it is the last resort. Last year I taught firty-five pupils at Indian Creek for three months and never resorted to corporal punishment a single time. My patrons desire me to continue my school in Clarkston, one offering to send a new pupil.

I exhort my pupils to be gentlemen and ladles and put them on their honor. The public must say if a teacher is not justifiable in using the rod, when a pupil comes up and meddles in a difficulty of another, offers to loan an opened knife to another pupil under reproof.

A good many people believe that the deceased died of scrotula, as the disease is in the family and a son died of 't some time ago.

My friends do not believe that the inception and trial, impaneling the jury and verdict of inquest was conducted impartially to-dict of inquest was conducted impartially to-wards me.

Physicians think the boy died of scrofula and that a post mortem examination would have shown it. Unfortunately for me I have some enemies about Clarkston; there are two schools and the parties who have been ac-tive in this matter against me are not and were never my patrons, but friends and sup-porters of the other school.

I feel that the greatest injustice has been done to me and my family by the manner of the prosecution, which is a persecution, and by the published accounts. I was absent in LaGrange attending the Georgia Baptist con-vention and sick under a physician when the deceased died.

deceased died.

I am a native of Gwinnett county, and have spent most of my life in Gwinnett and DeKalb counties, have taught many schools, but never had a serious difficulty with patrons before cfore.

There are many things that might be unathed, and they will be at the proper-time, hat will go to show the animus of this case.
Members of the jury of inquest protested gainst and do not believe the verdict just.
I request made to have an impartial physican put on the inquest as a witness was clussed.

HIS WIFE AND CHILD

SUICIDE OF MR. GUS - ARNOLD.

He Shot Himself in the Station at Ellend-A Crowd of East Tennessee Passengers at the Scene.

In the presence of his wife and daughter, Gus Arnold, the agent of the East Tennessee at Ellenwood, committed suicide In his own office he sent a bullet through his brain, dying almost instantly.

Mr. Arnold has been residing at the little station fourteen miles from Atlanta for sev-eral months. He has been connected with the East Tennessee for many years. For awhile he was claim agent, traveling up and down the road. In this way he became widely known and equally well liked.

After that he was placed in charge of the coal chutes and water tanks in and about McDonough. In Henry county he acquired possession, by his industry and judicious investments, of several large plantations and other property.

His father, Senator Elijah A. Arnold, had left him a consderable inheritance and in all he was very well off. Several months ago Gus Arnold took charge of the office at Ellenwood. He was a large, portly man and impressed every one of his being in the best of health, and he of his being in the best of health, and he seemed to live a happy, contented life. A week or more ago, however, he appeared to grow despondent. What reasons there were for such a state of mind no one could tell. But he brightened up again after a day or two snd nothing more was thought of it.

Yesterday afternoon shortly after 12 o'clock, the East Tennessee came thundering up to the little station. Mr. Arnold had been standing on the outside, seemingly in a meditative mood. He then went into his office where his wife and daughter sat.

Suddenly they heard a shot and were startled to see the husband and father fall to the floor, holding in his hand the deadly pistol that had done the work.

They rushed to his side, but he was scarcely breathing. They bent over him and at that moment Gus Arnold breathed his last.

It was just as the train come and The his last.

It was just as the train came up. The passengers learned of the tragely and rushed to the little room. There the agent lay, his head bathed in blood, with a bullet through his right temple.

Mrs. Arnold had run from the office, her dress almost dyed in the blood of her husband. A physician hastily came up, but it was too late.

No reasons could be assigned for the suicidal act, beyond that of temporary insanity.

cidal act, beyond that of temporary insanity.

Mr. Arnold's tragic death will be heard with great regret by the many who knew him in the state. He has two sons on the East Tennessee, Milton, a fireman, and Emmett, the agent at Braswell.

A daughter of his, Mrs. Callaway, resides in Atlanta.

Mr. Arnold was fifty-four years of age.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A DUMMY.

Mr. M. J. Prisock Badly Injured by a Dummy

Yesterday.

M. J. Prisock, an ex-policeman and at present an attache at Fulton county jail, met with a serious accident yesterday. On account of his old age his injuries may prove fatal.

About 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon he came out of the store at the corner of Fraser and Hunter streets. Without seeing a dummark. out of the store at the corner of Fraser and Hunter streets. Without seeing a dummy that was approaching, he started across the track. As he did so the train struck him and knocked him down. Before the engineer could stop the old gentleman had been dragged a considerable distance.

He was picked up and carried to the store near by and Dr. Collier summoned. The physician found the wounded man badly injured, his thigh and right arm especially suffering.

Mr. Prisock was carried to his home at 18 Fitzgerald street, where he was lying in a very serious condition last evening.

ARTESIAN BEER AHEAD AGAIN.

A Carload Shipped to San Francisco Be-cause of Its Merit.

A Carload Shipped to San Francisco Because of Its Merit.

The Montgomery Brewing Company has scored another point in competing with the breweries of the world by receiving an order for a carload of their celebrated "Artesian" from a leading house in San Francisco, Cal., and the circumstances connected with this order make it so much more valuable from the fact that it came Without being solicited or expected by the Brewery.

For some time back the "Artesian" beer has been sold by a few dealers in New York city, who were successful in creating a demand for this brand in spite of the fact that it has to be sold at a price about twenty-five per cent higher than the New York beers owing to the high freight rates. It was in the store of one of these patrons of the Montgomery Brewing Company that Mr. F. G. Voss, a prominent merchant of San Francisco, saw the beer and after trying same expressed himself in very flattering terms; in fact so pleased was he with the quality and so confident that he could successfully introduce it on the Pacific coast that he wrote at cace for prices and other particulars. Thanks to the efforts of the local railroad officials the Montgomery Brewing Company secured rates, which, although very high, will enable them to compete with New York, St. Louis, Milwaukee, and as the result, they shipped their first car to California yesterday.

This is an acknowledgement of the superiority of their product almost equal to that granted to them by the jurors of the Paris exposition, when they awarded to them the gold medal for 'purity and excelence" and it is another proof that southern manufacturers can successfully compete with those of the north and west, especially in the manufacture of better grade articles.

We congratulate our home brewery on this new feather in its cap, and hope that this shipment will be the first one of a long series.

It Comes Up Before the Bridge Committoe-Other City Hall News.

The McDaniel street bridge, spanning the East Tennessee road, is a fruitful source of East Tennessee road, is a fruitful source of trouble.

The tragic history of the McDaniel street bridge is familiar to all Atlantians. Twelve traumen have been knocked from the top of freight cars passing under this bridge and have been ground to death under the car wheels. The bridge was not high enough to allow a man standing on top of his car to pass beneath it.

The list of tragedies at this bridge became so long that the Fulton county grand jury of last fall took the matter in hand, indicted the officials of the road responsible for the existence of the bridge, and ordered that it be at once raised.

at once raised.

The bridge was raised at once; but while the lives of the trainmen were protected by the change made, the traveling public and the owners of property around the bridge suf-the owners of property around the bridge suffered.

The bridge was raised to the height required by the grand jury, but the grade of the street was not raised correspondingly. The result was the two ends of the bridge were made very steep and very troublesome to the traveling public.

Mrs. W. D. Mitchell, who owns a large tract of real estate at the north end of the bridge, has petitioned the council to do something in the matter. She declares that the present condition of the bridge, if not remedied at once, will do great damage to her property. She asks that the council take the matter into immediate consideration and have the railroad fix the approaches so as to make the street at least passable.

This petition came up before the bridge committee at a special meeting yesterday morning.

This petition came up before the bridge committee at a special meeting yesterday morning.

There were present at the meeting Aldermen Turner, Rice and Stephens, and Mr. Albert Howell, representing the East Tennessee road; Judge Jim Anderson, representing the city, and Colonel Robert J. Jordan, representing petitioner.

Mr. Howell said that the road had compiled with the legal requirements; the bridge had been raised to the height asked.

Judge Anderson, took a different view of the matter. He cited the action of the grand jury and the report of the subcommittee of the grand jury on the matter. The grand jury demanded that either the bridge be raised or the track be lowered. The road had raised the bridge but the city had been the sufferer. Alderman Rice thought that the road was not acting in good faith in the matter. Its duty, he said, was plain, but it was not performing that duty.

The matter was not acted on at yesterday's meeting of the committee, but was deferred until a later meeting.

The Salary Ordinance.

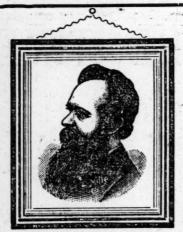

The salary ordinance has become a law. Mayor Hemphill has signed it, and when the date named in the ordinange rolls around there will be no more perquisites in the clerk and marshal's office.

On Loyd and Decatur Streets.

The Loyd street lot is 39 by 120 feet and the one on Decatur, just below the corner, is 22 by 120 feet. This is strictly central, giltedge property, right in the very heart of Atlanta. This location would be suitable for any kind of business. It is convenient to the Markham and Kimball houses and less than a block from the passenger depot. Capitalists that desire to make safe investments, where they will continue to enhance for years to come, will do well to attend this sale. When central property reaches $2,000 and $3,000 per front foot, as it certainly will do in a few years, judging from the rapid influx of money and population, you will simply wonder that you did not buy more in the spring of 1892. No min ever failed to raap a profit from the purchase of good central real estate in Atlanta. In fact, the rich men of this great city are those who put their money in Atlanta property.

When we say English, French, Scotch, German, American Suitings in the Merchant Tailoring store we mean just exactly that. You'll never find a London ticket on a Yankee Cloth here. It isn't a question of "just as good" or "just as stylish, it's a question of gerting just what you pay for.

Ask to see the Scotch Stuffs for Suits and the English Trouserings. They're a closing lot at closing price. They're a fair measure of what your money may do in made-to-ords. Clothing here.

The United States paid Russia $7,200,000 for Alaska and the seals. The English say, if they swim out of our creeks there, they belong to them if they catch them. It's just like the crows coming over from Macon. They're sure to return.
They belong to Macon. Atlanta doesn't claim them. That's the dispute in a nutshell.

It's just about like that with our stylish Spring Suits. As soon as they get on the street, away from our store, the Merchant Tailors get credit for having made them. We don't want war, however. We'll arbitrate. Give the Tailors the credit, but we are having a street of the street. but go on buying our Suits.
